Who should attend?

- Foster Parents, Kinship Families, Foster Care Licensing Agency Staff, Child Welfare Staff, and Behavioral Health Providers

What can I expect?

- Each webinar will include material from Dr Bruce Perry on the Neurosequential Model for Caregiving
- Case presentations about difficult behavior challenges from foster parents
- Concrete suggestions for foster parents and kinship families to help manage behavior challenges

How do I learn more about this?

- Let us know you want to be added to the mailing list by sending your email address to Julia Drake at jdrake@azcouncil.com
- Call Julia at 602.252.9363 with questions
- We will send out details about how to register for the webinars using that mailing list

Space is limited for the live webinars, but all webinars will be archived and available to be watched later the same week—or anytime at your convenience. Please consider joining with other foster parents, kinship families, or agency staff to view the webinars as a group!

You can find more information about the program and register for the live and archived webinars on our website at <http://www.azcouncil.com/neurosequential-model-for-caregiving/>.
